Legislative Aide Hired by Tower

Washington Bureau of The News

WASHINGTON — Sen. John G. Tower announced two changes in his office staff Tuesday, including the naming of a new legislative assistant.

He is William J. Webb, an aide to former Sen. William F. Knowland, former Republican minority leader in the Senate. Webb replaces Jim Clay of Richmond, Va.

Webb is a former employe of the Central Intelligence Agency, and he also has worked in the Pentagon as a special assistant in the research and development field.

Tower also announced the hiring of Jerry W. Friedheim, a former assistant to Republican Rep. Durward Hall of Missouri and newsman in Joplin, Mo. Friedheim will work primarily in the legislative field of labor and public welfare.
